Ninth Victim Dies Enroute To Hospital

SINCE JAN. 1 nine persons have been killed on local highways.

Death claimed the ninth victim early Saturday morning when Bernard Nitzburg, 28, of Crotona Parkway, Bronx, N. Y., died enroute to Monroe County General Hospital.

Nitzburg was fatally injured when he was thrown from the sports car in which he was riding at about 1:20 a. m. Saturday near Bushkill. He died about 30 minutes later in the ambulance on the way to the hospital.

Monroe County Coroner Dr. Charles Rushmore examined the body. Rushmore signed a death certificate showing a broken neck and skull fractures were the cause of death.

Down Steep Hill

Millford State police said the accident occurred when the sports car, driven by its owner, Bernard Diamond, 30, of 551 W. 204th St., New York City, came down a steep hill on the Bushkill-Tamiment road.

At a point a mile and a half north of Bushkill, the car, going south, ran out of control off the road, hit a stone wall and a tree. Nitzburg, who was riding in the back seat of the car, was thrown from it. He landed on the top portion of his body, head downward.

Three other persons were injured. One of these—Ruth Brooks, 25, of Manor Drive, Union, N. J.—was taken to General Hospital where she was admitted for treatment of a possible skull fracture, shock and facial cuts. Miss Brooks' condition was at first listed as "critical" by the hospital.

Last night, however, she had improved sufficiently so that her condition was listed as "fair." The other two injured were Diamond, the driver, who suffered from shock and body bruises and Leatrice Aaronson, 25, of 30-71st Ave., Kew Gardens, N. Y., who suffered body and facial bruises. Both Diamond and Miss Aaronson were treated at the hospital dispensary and released.

Investigating the accident for the Millford sub-station were troopers Glenn James and Edwin Pierce. Police indicated after the accident that an involuntary manslaughter charge may be filed against Diamond, the operator of the car.

Nitzburg's body was released to Lanterman funeral home, East Stroudsburg. He was the son of Edward and Anna Eisenberg Nitzburg, New York City. He was a machinist by occupation.

War Veteran

A veteran of World War Two, he is survived by his parents; two brothers, Jerome of New York City and Leonard of Los Angeles, Calif. Funeral services will be held today at 2 p. m. at Park West Memorial Chapel, New York City with interment in Cedar Park Cemetery, Emerson, N. J.

During the first six months of 1955, eight persons were killed on local highways.

The first fatality occurred on Jan. 5 when Henry Walter Carpenter, a truck driver was killed when his truck ran off the road and over a steep bank near Mount Pocono on Route 611. Two days later Walter E. Waltz, a pedestrian, was hit on Route 209 in Brodheadville and died a short time later.

Three fatalities occurred in March: Joseph and Helen Vanshell were killed on icy highways at Blakeslee Corners when they were thrown from the rear of an auto on March 27; on March 29 Chester Williams suffered fatal injuries when the car he was driving hit a tree near Wigwam Park.

On May 19, Linda Oney, a six-year-old Anadomick child, was killed in an accident at Paradise Valley Corner when her grandfather's coal truck ran off the road, braked, and overturned. Eight days later, James Shellenberger, Delaware Water Gap, was crushed to death under the wheels of a truck in that borough.

On June 8, a Wilkes-Barre man, working in this area, was killed when his car overturned at Paradise Valley Corners a short distance from the spot where the Oney girl had been killed two weeks before.

New Outbreak Against Peron Dulls "Pacification" Pleas

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 10 (AP)—Police and hose-wielding firemen routed hundreds of shouting, stone-throwing Roman Catholics before the Metropolitan Cathedral today. A few demonstrators were arrested and about 500 others chased away.

It was the first outbreak of trouble in Buenos Aires since the revolt of June 16. Some of the demonstrators hurled stones and pieces of brick at police in scuffles in the Plaza de Mayo and some of the policemen were pushed off their feet. A few suffered slight injuries in the scuffles, as did some of the demonstrators.

Firemen sprayed the demonstrators with chemical foam and water tinted with a brown dye. Police sirens wailed and police wagons rushed to the plaza with reinforcements after the trouble broke out.

The demonstrators shouted: "Liberty," "Freedom and Peace" and "He must go," the latter taken to refer to President Juan D. Peron.

One woman screamed at the police: "Why didn't you come out when they were burning the churches?"

The noisy demonstration came in the face of President Peron's call for "pacification" in the nation and in defiance of appeals from Catholic church leaders for peace.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10 (AP)—A violent quarrel between a young married couple in front of their North Philadelphia home yesterday morning ended tragically with the wife dead and the husband under arrest for homicide.

"I didn't mean to hurt her," 26-year-old John Johnson, father of two small children, cried to detectives who took him into custody for fatally striking his wife, Dolores, 23.

Detectives Edward Reppsch and Charles Gargani said Johnson told them he struck his wife once "and she fell and hit her head."

The detectives said Johnson told them his wife had remained away from home overnight and that had caused the quarrel.

Two Donkeys To Greet Ike At 'Summit'

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 10 (AP)—Two grinning donkeys will remind President Eisenhower of home and 1956 every time he strolls in the garden of his lakeside villa. The two little wooden beasts stand in an informal garden of the villa the President will use during the Big Four summit conference next week.

Retired from a Swiss merry-go-round, the donkeys are spending their last years balancing huge clusters of geraniums on their backs in the cool garden. They came to light as the President's security staff granted the press one final look at the 25-acre estate and villa, now known as the Chateau de Creux de Gentod.

A member of the President's staff, when asked if the donkeys might be pushed back into the bushes before the President arrives Saturday evening, grinned.

"Now," he said, "but we might send for an elephant."

The 15-room, 18th century villa already is manned by part of the White House staff. Secret Service men stand at the outer gate. The grounds border the Lake Geneva for about 150 yards. It appeared today the fishing in that area is exceptionally good.

Eisenhower Prays For Parley Confab

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 10 (AP)—President Eisenhower bowed his head in prayer today for success of the Big Four conference. His son and grandson joined him.

In sweltering heat, the President attended service at the Ivy-covered 215-year-old Gettysburg Presbyterian Church with his son, Maj. John Eisenhower, and grandson, 7-year-old David.

The minister, the Rev. Clyde Raynor Brown, offered a prayer for a successful outcome of the Geneva conference starting July 18.

The Eisenhowers drove to church from the President's farm, on the edge of Gettysburg battlefield, where they are spending the weekend.

Mrs. Eisenhower and her daughter-in-law remained at the farmhouse.

After church the President took his son and grandson on a motor trip of the Gettysburg battlefield.

Two Hours Warning

Want Trials To Explain Their Cases

HONG KONG, July 10 (AP)—Three former U. S. soldiers who chose and then rejected life in Communist China were back in the free world tonight—ready, they said, to face the consequences.

They were captured in Korea. When the armistice came, they and 20 other Americans decided to stay with the Communists rather than go home. Four months ago these three demanded to be repatriated.

Asked why he changed his mind, William A. Cowart, 23, of Dalton, Ga., said:

"A child decided not to go home—a man decided to go home."

Cowart, with Lewis W. Griggs, 22, of Jacksonville, Tex., and Otho G. Bell, 24, of Hillsboro, Miss., came by train from Canton to Hong Kong today, ending two years in what Cowart called "a society built on fear."

Once inside this British colony, they were turned over to U. S. authorities and will sail for home tomorrow night on the liner President Cleveland, due at San Francisco July 29.

They told a news conference at their hotel tonight they expect to be prosecuted when they reach the United States but they are willing to face it in order to explain what happened to them.

All three admitted they committed acts when they were war prisoners which made them afraid at armistice time to return to the United States. None would say specifically what these acts were. Griggs referred in vague terms to an article hostile to America which he had written.

Cowart said:

"I did things (as a prisoner) that I felt were contradictory to what an American should do. The Chinese told me I would be treated very severely if I went back."

Each of the three in turn pleaded youth, stupidity and the appeal of clever Communist propaganda to excuse their behavior.

Griggs, Bell and Cowart entered Hong Kong territory early this afternoon. They walked from the train across the 200-foot Shum Chun River bridge to be greeted by British immigration officials and Miss Margaret Strathie, British Red Cross representative, who handed them messages from their families.

"Taken In"

All three declared they had been taken in by Communist propaganda in prisoner of war camps.

"I was convinced that communism was correct or I would not have gone" (to Red China), Griggs said. "I was one of those poor fools who fell for it."

Griggs said he no longer believes in communism "because I have now seen the contradictions between what they say and what they do. For example, the Communists say they do not have a police state in Red China—but that is all they do have. They say their police system is to protect—but what you have to fear is their protection."

Cowart said every statement made by the American soldiers who chose communism after the Korean War was "dictated by Alan Winnington, Wilfred Burchett or Lee Ping" (three Communist newspaper correspondents).

Killer Scheduled To Die Today

BELLEFONTAINE, Pa., July 10 (AP)—William Maxwell Jr., 27, of Philadelphia, was brought to Rockview Penitentiary today to pay with his life for the holdup slaying of a Chester grocer.

He is to die in Pennsylvania's electric chair shortly after 1:30 a. m. Eastern Daylight Time tomorrow.

Maxwell arrived at the penitentiary at 7 a. m. and was placed in a cell on death row. He was brought by aides of the Delaware County sheriff's office.

Russell's Move To Exempt Veterans From Reserves Training May Kill Program

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—Key House members say privately that a proposal to exempt service veterans from compulsory reserve training will virtually wreck President Eisenhower's program for building up reserves.

The proposal, by Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), was received with evident dismay by many of the men who fought for six weeks to get the President's controversial measure through the House. It has picked up support from other senators, as well as some personnel now on active duty who would be affected.

House opponents of the Russell plan take the same position as Secretary of Defense Wilson: that it would deprive an expanded reserve of the necessary nucleus of trained men. They also contend it would encourage youths to take their chances with the draft and thereby discourage them from volunteering for a short active hitch and extended service in the reserves.

Not Identified

These House members declined to be identified because of a congressional tradition against criticizing lawmakers on opposite sides of the Capitol.

As passed by the House, the reserve measure is designed to get one million teen-agers to volunteer in the next four years for a special six months' training program and 7½ years in the reserves. This would exempt them from the two-year draft as long as they kept up their training.

The measure also requires all reservists to attend 48 weekly drills and a 17-day summer encampment, or the equivalent. Failure to do so would subject them to recall for 45 days' active duty.

Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has proposed that all men completing at least 18 months active service be exempted from reserve training on the ground this would be double duty.

House leaders say double duty should be avoided for combat veterans but not those whose active service is performed in peacetime.

Democrats Agree

Senate Democratic leaders were reliably reported to have agreed, soon after, that the Democratic-controlled Congress should play an active role in pursuit of a workable world disarmament program.

The question of East-West disarmament is shaping up as one of the key issues at the July 18 summit conference among President Eisenhower and the premiers of Britain, France and the Soviet Union. No official of the Democratic party will accompany Eisenhower to the conference or, so far as is known, participate in the lower-level talks which it hoped will follow the Big Four meeting.

Bumper Crop Of Coffee

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that a bumper crop of coffee is coming up.

World production for the 1955-56 marketing season was forecast at 45 million bags of 132 pounds each. A crop of this size would be 11 per cent larger than last year's and 8 per cent above the prewar average, which was ample.

The department said its forecast may be too conservative—that an upward revision may be in order when final data are available.

In making its production forecast, the department did not say whether it expected any change in prices. But increases in the production of any crop are usually followed by price declines.

Quiet-Spoken Earl C. Clements Has Solid Backing As Substitute For Sen. Johnson

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—Kentucky's quiet-spoken Earl C. Clements appears to have marshaled solid Democratic backing in his role of substitute for Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

Johnson, who was stricken with a heart attack on July 2, may be out of action for several months. His doctors have suggested the possibility they will oppose his resuming the arduous duties they blame for his illness.

If the time should come that Johnson decides he cannot carry on in the leadership post, Clements seems likely to be promoted from acting to a full-fledged status.

Democrats Still Have Good Chance

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—Democratic Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota said today President Eisenhower "may well be in a stronger political position in 1956 than he is today."

Humphrey said he sees "no prospect" that economic gains now being reported by administration officials will change for the worse. And Eisenhower, he said, stands to gain politically from the Big Four summit talks that get underway July 18 at Geneva.

Nevertheless, Humphrey said the Democratic party has a "fighting chance" to recapture the White House from the Republicans next year.

Employment High

Continued upswings as evidenced in figures showing a record 64 million Americans employed during June, "very frankly will be all to the political advantage of the Republican party," Humphrey said in an interview.

But Democratic victories in key governor races last year, he said, together with such issues as public power, farm prices and regional unemployment will all help the Democrats next year, no matter who is their presidential candidate.

Republicans generally saw the new employment figures as further strengthening their political hold on the White House. They conceded privately, however, that Eisenhower's decision on whether to seek a second term could change the political picture overnight. There has been no word on the President's plans.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, New Jersey Republican, declared continued prosperity would force the Democrats next year to adopt a strategy of appealing to "individual groups on sectional issues."

Thirteen Workmen Die In Tunnel

KYOTO, Japan, Monday, July 11 (AP)—Thirteen workmen were trapped by a cave-in yesterday in a water tunnel feeding a power plant as Otsu, All are believed dead.

Police said some probably were crushed to death and others presumably drowned in water backed up in the clogged tunnel.

Faint cries for help stopped late last night, five hours after the cave-in.

A crew of 80, including a few who escaped the cave-in, worked with hand implements and pumps to clear sand, mud, rocks and high-water.

German Unity Sought By Reds

DUESSELDORF, Germany, July 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru of India, flying home from Europe, said here tonight he had found "general agreement in Soviet Russia that Germany should be reunified."

The Asian leader, however, cautioned against expectations that the Big Four summit conference at Geneva next week would solve world problems.

"I think the world atmosphere has definitely improved," Nehru said. "It would not be right to expect a solution at Geneva but rather a consideration of ways and means of bringing about agreement."

last week from his job as Democratic "whip" or assistant leader.

Clements, a stocky, bespectacled farmer of 58 who speaks with the drawl of his native Kentucky, has announced he intends to continue Johnson's policies.

Judging from past performance, that would mean the Democrats will continue to pinpoint their opposition to certain domestic policies of the Eisenhower administration while supporting with a fanfare most of the administration's foreign moves.

It would mean more of the party line votes by which Johnson has been able to demonstrate unusual Democratic unity while administering some surprise defeats to the Republicans.

Speaker Analyzes Basic Challenges To Business

"Maintaining Economic Health in a Free Society" was the subject of an address by Wesley I. Rennie, executive director, Committee for Economic Development, at the Inn, Buck Hill Falls, last week. Mr. Rennie spoke before the Taxpayers Association. The address is being published by The Daily Record in five parts, the last of which appears today.

LET ME ATTEMPT to outline briefly some of the principles this group of businessmen thinks are necessary to keep the relationship between a free economy and a free society healthy.

First, stability. With the government absorbing each year about one-sixth of all the goods and services produced in the nation it is obvious that government has both the means and the responsibility to contribute materially to the maintenance of economic stability. Even without the present volume of government spending we believe government inevitably must concern itself with modifying excesses in the business cycle.

The government has many instruments at its disposal with which to influence the rate of economic activity in the country. Some of these are disruptive to a free economic system and arbitrary in their effect upon people. Others are designed to combat specific instability problems in specific industries—housing, agriculture, or mining.

Favor Indirect Means

Still others are indirect, affect the economy generally but in a way that does not disrupt the workings of a free economy or discriminate unduly among various classes of people. Our studies of national policies for maintaining economic stability have led CED to favor this latter category of instruments which include sound budgetary and monetary policies.

We have stressed the need for government to base its budget policy on the objective of promoting high employment while retaining the essential discipline over government spending which is embodied in the balanced-budget idea. We do not believe that taxes should be set so as to balance an arbitrarily defined budget over an arbitrary amount of time.

We think taxes should be set so that in conditions of high employment the cash outlays of the government will equal the cash income in a given year. The problems of definition implied in this principle are still being studied by the committee, but the outlines of the principle—the co-ordination of high employment and discipline over government spending—are clear.

Both Have Responsibility

We also pioneered the revival of monetary policy as an instrument to check excessive upswings in the economy and to discourage excessive down-swings. The monetary instrument commends itself because it is both effective and impartial in its effect on the economy. And of all the instruments at the disposal of government for the maintenance of stability, the monetary instrument interferes least with the institutions of a free economy.

There are many other means of promoting stability which government and business can use without introducing undesirable discrimination or state intervention into our economic life. The committee has studied some—the management of the national debt, the problems of inventory control in business for example—and undoubtedly will study others. But the essential point is that both government and business have a responsibility to help maintain stability and that ways exist for doing so without sacrificing other advantages of our economic way of life.

Factors Resides Taxes

The second area of basic interest to CED is the promotion of economic growth. At its narrowest this objective involves the ever-present matter of taxes. We have concerned ourselves extensively with the effects of taxes on economic growth. Real issues of economic justice are involved in the manner in which the tax burden is distributed. In miniature all the problems of harmonizing economic justice with the need to foster the creative elements in our society are latent in the debates over our tax laws.

I have not time to discuss here all the various facets of the tax code which the committee has studied and reported on. Tax reform is a never-ending job. We have reached the conclusion that it is particularly important at this time to be concerned with the deterrent influence of the tax structure upon creative incentives.

But taxes are by no means the only factors affecting economic growth. The committee is currently entering a major study of the problem more directly—when have we had economic growth in the past? what factors tended to promote that growth—what factors tended to retard it? Where do we encounter conflicts between growth and other values in society—values such as stability and security? What can be done about the problems that rapid growth may create—ranging from the problems of backward industries to the problems of education and the social and psychological problems caused by a great increase in leisure? And we propose to study the distribution of the benefits of economic growth, particularly among the lowest income groups in our society. How can we alleviate and if possible eliminate extreme poverty in our country?

World Leadership

These are very basic problems in the relationship between a free economy and a free society.

Finally, and most difficult, are the problems which arise from world leadership at this point in history. Americans now broadly recognize that our country and our way of life depend for their survival in the long run on freedom surviving and flourishing in countries outside our border. Translating this interest into international economic policies is a soul-searching problem. Whether it be the tariff, trade policy, or aid to friends and allies abroad, the limits of the possible are nowhere clear and the desirability of specific policies is subject to much honest difference of opinion.

Take tariff policy as an example. The business community is finding it increasingly difficult to develop a consensus among its members on tariff policy. CED's Research and Policy Committee did find a consensus, though not without some outspoken dissent as our published report shows. The Committee's consensus was that the nation proceed "gradually and selectively" towards lower tariff barriers. These words "gradual and selective" epitomize, I think, the committee's belief that the United States must lead the movement towards a greater community of nations but must do so with due regard for what is possible and for our strength at home.

Higher Standards

We are in the midst of an equally difficult study of aid in the economic development of under developed countries. Masses of people in the world are just now awakening to a realization that man has some say over his destiny and that the poverty in which they have been steeped for centuries need not be their inevitable lot. They are filled with resentment over their subordination for so many years to the needs and desires of western colonial power. They are stirring with nationalistic fervor, sometimes bordering on the fanatical.

They are beguiled by predatory communism and filled with a sense of urgency to catch up with the material power of their former western masters. They pose a tremendous challenge to the ingenuity of all leaders in the west because of the fact that the aims and ideals of these people will influence greatly the kind of world we will live in a few years hence. What is our responsibility towards these new forces in the world? What can we do and what should we do towards helping these people achieve higher standards of living and thereby at least improve the likelihood of their adopting values consistent with those of western civilization?

A mere glance at these problems is enough to conclude that never will all of them be solved by an appeal to objective fact. Or, to put it another way, the new responsibilities of the businessman in our society can never be discharged wholly through objective research and expert guidance. Tolerance and humility in approaching these problems is absolutely essential. We shall continually have to remind ourselves—and not just on each Fourth of July—that the maintenance of freedom and its manifold benefits require constant tireless work and study. This is part of our heritage as Americans—a heritage of promises fulfilled and of challenges to be accepted.

Says Gospel To Triumph Over Distance

"TIMES OF distress and perplexity around the world are only serving to increase the triumph of the Gospel," declared Washington church editor, Frederick Lee, at the closing session of the statewide congress near Allentown to Stroudsburg Seventh-day Adventists.

A record influx of nearly 4,000 heard the staff editor of the church's world publication, "The Review and Herald," report on the Adventist world mission progress in the 192 of 228 countries in which the church has hospitals, sanitariums, clinics, educational institutions and other stations.

Dark Period

In reporting on the conditions around the globe Editor Lee said, "We have entered upon a dark and perilous period for the human race, but it is to be a day of triumph for the people of God. The Bible pictures the last days as a time of darkness, gloominess, and clouds out of which God's remnant light will shine with glorious light and during which time large numbers will listen to the truths of God's word for this time and accept them."

Stroudsburg members also heard Carl Sundin, medical placement director for the denomination's class A medical school, the College of Medical Evangelists in Los Angeles.

Also appearing on the closing program was Arthur J. Patzer, seven-state regional youth director. Another highlight of the program was Ben Glanzer, internationally known singing evangelist.

The local delegation has returned after ten days of comprehensive programs which also featured several facets of practical Christian endeavor such as welfare work, vocation and branch Bible school training and civil defense instruction.

Pennsylvania State Parks In Pocono Mountains Area Offer Many Top Facilities

STATE PARKS in the Pocono Mountains region offer top facilities for family entertainment.

These parks are included on the list:

Big Pocono offers sites for picnicking. At Tobyhanna State Park there are facilities for picnicking, boating and fishing. At George W. Childs Park you'll find picnicking and fishing allowed.

Promised Land State Park offers the widest range of activity for the family—picnicking, fishing, boating and tenting are all permissible there.

Picnic Areas

In State forest land picnic areas: At Snow Hill both picnicking and tenting are available; at Peck's Pond campers are allowed to pitch tents and stay for picnicking, fishing and boating and at Owego-Trail picnicking is the main facility.

No cabins are available at any of the parks or preserves until this Fall, Pyle said.

Tax Budget, Fair Employment Big Issues For Legislature

State Monies For Schools Key Maneuver

Harrisburg, July 10 (P)—The tax budget and fair employment practices legislation share interest this week in the state legislature, which opens the 7th month Monday of the prolonged 1955 session.

The lawmakers return to the state capital after a week's recess for the Independence Day holiday period.

The Democratic House is expected to open debate on the state's $8 billion dollar budget for 1955-57 while administration forces continue efforts to line up sufficient votes to pass Gov. Leader's classified income tax bill.

Legislation to bar discrimination in jobs because of race, color or creed heads into a showdown vote in the Republican Senate with a clause inserted prohibiting discrimination also because of age.

School Aid Vote

The Democratic House leadership planned to press for a vote on appropriations for state aid to schools in the overall strategy to whip up support for the governor's tax program, which may come to a vote in the House some time this month.

The Democratic strategy was based on the stand that if anti-income Democrats support approval of the school grants, then administration forces can press for their votes for the tax program to finance the grants.

The governor's $500 million dollar tax program, built around a classified income tax to raise 400 millions, has been stalled in the House since it was presented in mid-April. The remaining 100 millions would be raised by levies on business and industry.

Republicans have lined up solidly against the classified income tax plan and sufficient Democrats in the House have come out against it to prevent passage. The plan would impose levies on various types of income ranging from one per cent on wages and salaries to six per cent on some forms of unearned income.

GOP Caucus

A caucus of the Republican majority in the Senate may decide the issue of the age clause in the fair employment practices bill. The Senate Education Committee, after once rejecting outright the House passed bill, unexpectedly reported it to the Senate floor for a vote two weeks ago, after inserting the controversial age amendment.

Sen. Albert R. Pechan (R—Armstrong) assistant GOP Senate leader, said a decision has yet to be reached by the Senate majority on retaining the age clause, which Leader has criticized as unenforceable.

"I'm personally in favor of the age amendment," Pechan said, "but whether all Republican senators will support the amendment won't be known until we caucus on it Monday or Tuesday."

Economic Aid

The governor's plan to create a 20 million dollar fund to aid municipalities in economically distressed areas to attract new industry also is in a position for debate in the House with Republicans generally expected to be in opposition.

In the Senate, debate is on tap for a constitutional amendment to authorize the sale of 150 million dollars in bonds to finance a bonus for veterans of the Korean War.

Three Women Suffer Minor Crash Injuries

POCONO PINES—Three women suffered minor bruises when the car in which they were riding ran off Route 940 near here about 7 p.m. yesterday.

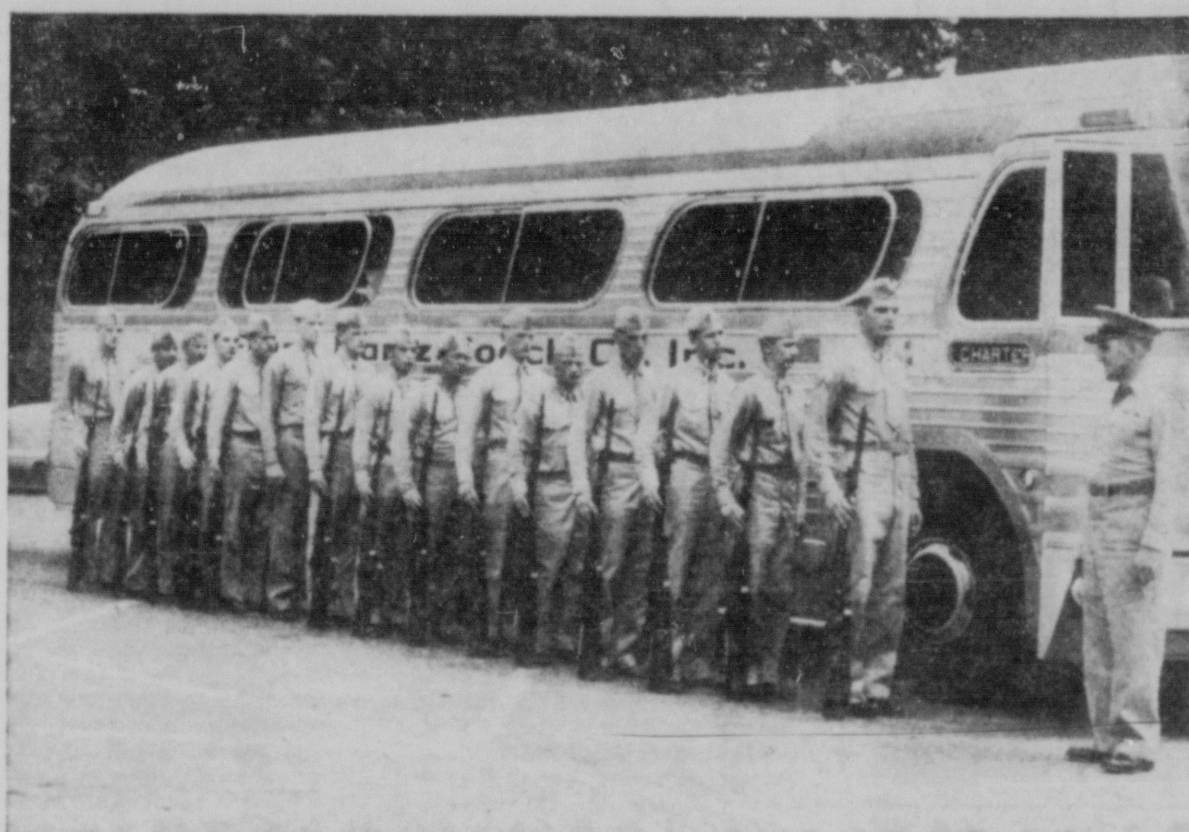

Mount Pocono State police identified the driver as Scott McMurtree, 60, of Kennett Square, Chester County, who was not injured. The injured women were McMurtree's wife, 54; Mrs. Caroline McGilligan, 67, and Mrs. Ralph Walters, 68, all of Kennett Square. They were treated at the scene by Dr. Paul Sterner, Pocono Pines.

McMurtree told police the steering on his car failed. Damage was estimated at about $500.

Pocono Art Group Closes First Show

THE LIGHTS went down on the first of two outdoor art shows in Stroudsburg Saturday night at 10.

In terms of variety and quality, it was "an excellent show," according to Olivia Dreher, chairman of the show for the Pocono Mountains Art Group, the sponsor.

Miss Dreher said the show could be termed successful on the basis of sales and the number of persons attending, also. About 90 paintings had been sold during the two-day show when it ended officially at 10 p. m. Saturday.

But sales, discussion and the audience did not end with the dimming of the lights. There were still clusters of viewers on hand as late as midnight Saturday night, Miss Dreher said.

To Display Work

A total of 70 artists took part in the show, bringing with them 1,135 pictures, 65 photographs and a wide variety of masks, painted rugs, tiles, pottery, leather goods, jewelry, crocheted handiwork, shell work, needlepoint, tinware and painted furniture.

On-the-spot demonstrations were given by artists at work. Mrs. Louise McGrath demonstrated painting technique Saturday and Arthur Widmer sketched portraits in charcoal in the square.

The Pocono Colored Slide Group showed transparencies Saturday night with H. Chester Aument in charge of the projector and narration.

In a statement released last night, Miss Dreher said: "I am happy to thank Burgess Hal H. Harris, the county commissioners, The Daily Record, radio station WVPO, The Penn-Stroud Hotel, Sheriff Altomero and all the property owners and businessmen along N. Seventh St. who made it possible for us to hold the show."

"In addition I would like to thank all the persons who visited the exhibit and helped make it a success. The interest of the community and of all the artists who exhibited have been wonderful. Only through this splendid showing of cooperation and good will has the show been able to grow to its present size."

"Audience Response
There are very few communities in America today whose residents can point to an art show of the size and quality of the just-past show in Stroudsburg. This year's first show has proved conclusively that an audience exists for creative art in all communities and, most certainly, in the Pocono Mountains."

Miss Dreher listed the following names of artists whose work was entered on Saturday and had not previously been published: Carla Holmgren, Jacob A. Saar, Henry Evans, Gertrude R. Rugh, J. Carol Tobias, Jennie Finch, Hattie Ennick, Pocono Camera Club, Cordelia LeZebnick, Johnnie Gruber, Barbara Osterman and Marilyn Huber.

Two Men Sustain Cut Elbows
MILFORD—Two Hartford, Conn., men suffered cut elbows—one man's right; the other's left—in a two-car crash nine miles west of here at 7 last night.

Total damages to the cars were estimated at $800. Milford State police gave these details: J. F. Miller, 27, of Maple St., Hartford, was driving east on Route 6. At a point where the road is now under construction, Miller braked his car.

Joseph Krempasky, 35, of Columbus Circle, Hartford, was following Miller. Krempasky braked—but it was too late. Krempasky's car hit Miller's. Miller's car ran off the road into a ditch. Krempasky's followed.

Both men were treated for elbow cuts. Miller's right elbow was hurt. It was Krempasky's left elbow that got cut.

Stevenson In Hospital

LAKE FOREST, Ill., July 10 (P)—Adlai Stevenson has been a patient at the Lake Forest Hospital since Thursday suffering from what his doctors described as bronchial pneumonia.

His condition was reported today to be one of virtual recovery. His physicians said that he probably would be discharged from the hospital tomorrow, but that he would have to rest at his home for another week or 10 days.

Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic nominee for president, was suffering from a severe cold when he addressed delegates to the annual convention of the National Education Assn. in Chicago last Monday.

D. C. Department Store To Tell Newspaper Story

WASHINGTON, July 10 (P)—The importance of the newspaper to the community, the nation and the American way of life will be stressed by a Washington department store in a "salute to newspapers."

Nearly 50 display windows of the Woodward & Lothrop downtown department store will be given over to displays of various phases of journalism.

J. W. Hardey, the store's advertising manager, said he believed the noncommercial display will give newspapers an opportunity to "unfold their colorful background and interpret their importance to the public which very often takes its heritage of free press and a free America too much for granted."

Senator Byrd's Warning On Cutting Of Government Expenses Is Perfectly Right

Senator Byrd is quite correct in saying that the Administration is not doing all it should to cut government spending.

Nor is this partisan sniping, for the Senator from Virginia was quick to criticize the bad fiscal policies of his own Democratic Party when it was in power.

The Eisenhower administration got off to a good start by trimming the Federal payroll and otherwise attempting to put the government on a sound financial basis.

But somehow the urge to spend, so characteristic of New Deal Democrats, came to afflict many Republicans too.

We may be closer to a balanced budget, but we ought to have arrived there by now.

As the reports of the Hoover Commission show, there still is an appalling amount of waste and inefficiency in the government, and little is being done about it.

But it isn't too late to start trying.

Have Men Forgotten That The Good And The Bad Are Both Very Possible?

(From The Wall Street Journal)

In the early 1930's a group of business men and bankers sat about a conference table discussing a proposal which had elements of risk.

The majority of them were opposed to it because of the risk features and they cited a series of pessimistic developments to explain their position.

One of the group who had been favoring the proposal under discussion rose, put on his hat and just as he left the room, he turned and said:

"Gentlemen, you are of course right. Nothing good is ever going to happen again."

Before that man had reached the elevator he was called back to the room and the proposal was approved in a matter of minutes. With a few words he had shown those assembled the fantastic lengths to which their fears were leading them.

The obverse of that statement would be, "Nothing bad is ever going to happen again."

We hope it won't. But we strongly suspect it will. And we suspect the adverse developments will occur when men have ceased to keep in mind their possibility; when men are carried away by their enthusiasm just as the men of the 1930's were smothered by their pessimism.

When the substitution of three pieces of paper for one piece of paper causes a stock to rise some 14 points over night; when companies in one line of business merge themselves with companies in a totally unrelated line of business; when individuals and companies buy other companies for no apparent reason except to be buying something—when these things occur, one may be permitted to wonder if men have forgotten that the good and the bad are both possible.

George Sokolsky Says...

TV, Movies Caught Between Battles Among Reds. Anti-Reds For Power

Some time ago John Crosby, radio and television columnist, attacked, with no holds barred, an organization with which work I am familiar, Aware Inc., the president of which is Godfrey P. Schmidt, a prominent lawyer. Nearly all the members of the Aware group are in the various theatrical industries.

The attack arose out of a denunciation of Aware by a group of Left-Wing members of the New York local board of AFTRA, the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists of the A. F. of L. There has, for many years, been a struggle inside AFTRA between the Communists and anti-Communists for control of that organization. The Left-wing group in AFTRA accuses the Aware group of blacklisting, that is, of maintaining a record of the activities of those engaged in the theater, including television, radio and the movies, and notifying sponsors, advertising agencies, networks and producers that they object to certain individuals because of their political beliefs.

Crosby spoke up in favor of the Left-Wingers who denounced Aware. At the AFTRA meeting on May 24, 1955, when a resolution condemning Aware was passed by a majority of 48 out of 346 qualified members present, only less than eight percent of the membership voted. A referendum went to the membership and the Aware group was defeated.

At most, such a condemnation is meaningless because any citizen is entitled to say that he will not attend or view a performance with which a Communist or any other kind of person has anything to do. No one can force another to go to a theater, to see a movie, to watch television or to listen to the radio. And if the sponsors of programs discover sales resistance, they will naturally investigate, discover the cause, and act accordingly.

The reason for sponsorship of programs is that it will sell goods. Many capitalistic companies refuse to sponsor conservative commentators because they say they are controversial. The seller of soap or cigarettes or automobiles usually takes the position that he prefers non-controversial programs because he does not want to antagonize customers. In effect, sponsors have blacklisted conservatives as they have blacklisted Communists. They say that both lose customers.

The Communists have made more noise about this resistance to their employment than have the conservatives. Some conservatives, particularly among commentators, never find a sponsor, or if they do, they have endless troubles with advertising agencies that want to censor their copy to fit a preconceived notion of what will lose the fewest customers for the product.

The easiest way to produce a whodunit or a musical or plays that deal with love and the stars. These do not lead to controversy. Even the whodunits come in for criticism; so companies employ the guessing lottery on the radio—such a performance as giving away thousands of dollars for answering questions out of an encyclopedia of useless information.

like who wrote Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar"—his name begins with an S.

The Aware group is definitely and unmistakably anti-Communist. Godfrey Schmidt, in a letter to Ogden Reid, president of the New York Herald Tribune, described it as follows:

"... Aware is a politically nonpartisan, interracial, inter-religious, non-profit corporation (New York State), formed to combat the Communist conspiracy in entertainment-communications (stage, screen, broadcast, music, the fine arts and related professions and skills). Aware was publicly announced at a press conference in December, 1953. Like the White House, Congress and the courts, Aware considers Communism a criminal conspiracy, not a 'political belief' as most Americans use that term."

Despite the fact that an effort is constantly being made to hush-hush the battle against Communism among the American people, it goes on all the time. The Communists are more active than they have ever been and they have the advantage of having gone underground which always means that they deny affiliation while they pursue their purposes. Anti-Communists are equally active and have learned how to fight. This battle may be a nuisance to politicians but it will continue just the same because both sides are fanatical in their zeal.

The radio and television sponsor is caught between them. If he employs Communists, he encounters sales resistance; if he refuses to employ them, he is accused of blacklisting. It is the same with the movies. Only the live theater in New York has been free from this struggle.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

Take It Easy, Kate

A grandmother who might have stepped from the old-fashioned Bible-reading home of yesterday, or come into the glare of TV from a pioneer cabin, a little worn from raising kids, cooking, and doing the dishes, is the talk of the airwave world. Out of a welter of quiz programs featuring the personality "puss," smart Alecks, wild guessers, anything-for-a-laugh specialists, all-out extroverts and the generally uninformed, has come a small-town, Bible-reading housewife to put knowledge of the 10 best movies far behind the Ten Commandments, make a memory of the Gospels seem far more important than the ability to recall the winners of last year's Oscars, and answer more questions about Joseph and David than about Bogart and Brando.

She is getting cheers from homes of America pretty well fed up on intellectuals that can name the two generals who met at Appomattox, tell what battle was fought at Bull Run, give the last name of a U. S. President whose first name was "Cal" and state whether a samovar is a bird, a game, a salad or a coffee urn. Mrs. Catherine Kretzler is 32, 600 to the good and can now go for $64,000 if she wishes to face a final question on Holy Writ.

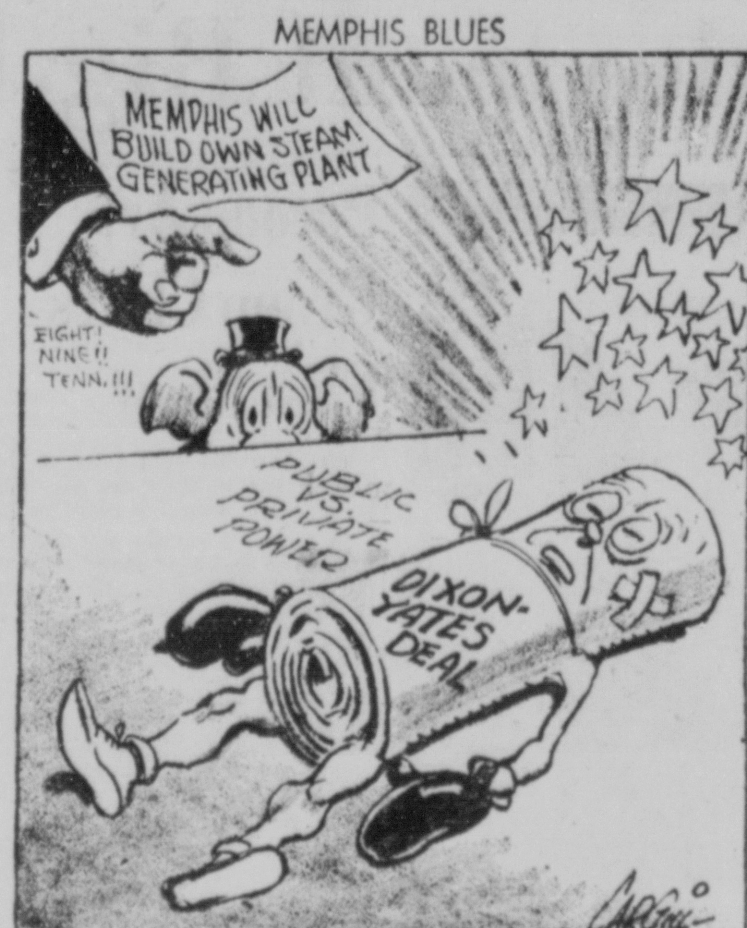

Millions of homes are in hot debate over whether she should be satisfied with $2 grand or go into a routine which could in any way be the good book into a shoot-the-works mood. As of now the gal has renewed interest in Bible reading as few persons have done in years. The Bible has always offered a "jackpot" for those seeking guidance, solace, strength, faith and the beauty of great writing. It has been "worth a million dollars" to many a man and woman down to the last time. But it has never before been associated with a heavy cash gamble on the airwaves. And, much as her countless rooters would like to see her win $64,000, we think most of them are saying, "Go-for-broke routine."

Mrs. Kretzler's quick and complete response to tough questions about the Scriptures, some of them triple-barreled, has been amazing, stirring the country with memories of the days when the family Bible was on most living-room tables, and pop and mom read it to the kids every night. The $32,000 question was a real tough one, but she came through fast. While it is hard to think of a Supreme Being as approving a cash jackpot routine, we like to think that maybe Peter and Matthew managed to send a good angel down to refresh the housewife's memory as a reward for a lifelong study of the Gospels. (The lady looked stuck for a minute or so, but her memory got the all clear just before the bell.) We hope that

Tuesday night she calls it a day. She has made more money on TV per minute than either Gleason or Berle on TV... $32,000 for about 5 minutes of actual question-asking. She can quit with a fair fortune, national prestige, and recognition as the top Bible salesman of the year.

At the recent American Embassy party in Moscow the Russian leaders ate American strawberries and cream... Which reminds us of the famous Willie Howard soapbox oration pleading for a revolution and promising that dish... "We don't like strawberries and cream," shouted a heckler... "Come the revolution you'll EAT them!" Howard retorted... "Peter Pan" is not to be done by an ice show... Does this mean a Never-Never Land where little boys and girls go to get their skates sharpened?... Peter Pan on ice would call, we think, for a combination of Sir James Barrie, Donna Atwood, Maude Adams and the iceman... Could be retitled "Peter Pemmican"... Two bandits executed a job while dressed as women, the papers say... This could be the first case of highway robbery masquerading behind a sarong... General Motors is to be split three for one... Evidently going in for production line stock certificates and the three-tone dividend.

Labor unions did not become important in the United States until after 1825 when several unions opposed such practices as imprisonment for debt, and favored free schools and the ten-hour day.

Git-Up-And-Go Boys Can Recapture Zest For Fun

But for the fact that I already had reservation at a fishing place up in Minnesota (and for one or two other considerations) I would have been tempted to go to the relatively jubilee conference in Berne, Switzerland, next week.

A bunch of the boys—the theoretical physicists, that is—are having a get-together there to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the late Dr. Einstein's formulation of the theory of relativity. It was back in 1905 that Einstein came up with the idea that knocked a lot of long-accepted notions into a cocked hat, revolutionized thinking in the upper brackets and pointed the way to an advanced form of civilization that now has Civil Defense Director Val Peterson urging us all to dig caves in our back yards, just in case.

That whinding in Berne has a strong fascination for me. For one thing, I'd like to see just how a group of theoretical physicists and advance-guard mathematicians go about putting on a jubilee. That's something I find it almost impossible to visualize, although I'm quite sure it would be nothing like a canners' convention or a Rainbow Division reunion.

I'm curious to know what the program committee for a powwow like that would consider an appropriate celebration of the epochal contributions of a genius like Einstein. These men live in a rarefied atmosphere adulterated only by elusive, gossamer algebraic equations. They couldn't survive in the cloying hot air of the standard testimonial banquet.

Nor is it likely that they would go much for any of those sentimental bull sessions in which the assembled scholars exchange raucous reminiscences of the time when "Of A!" put molasses in the headmaster's slide-rule or parked the butcher's horse in the cupola of Old Main. "For He Was a Jolly Good Fellow" wouldn't seem to hit quite the right note for a conclave honoring the memory of a mind like Einstein's.

I am at a loss to say just what would—unless one of the attending scientists happens to have a hitherto unrecorded law of nature to unveil.

But mainly I'd like to sit in on that conference simply because there's a chance that one of the distinguished speakers might inadvertently throw a revealing ray of light on precisely what Dr. Einstein was driving at when he expounded his world-shaking new concept of time and space back there in '05.

That theory of relativity has been kicking around here all my life and it has opened up some wonderful vistas of knowledge for those with good eyesight. But even though I went another round with the encyclopedias after reading about this forthcoming jubilee, I still don't get it.

Seems to me it's about time some inspired savant explained the Einstein theory in terms suitable for digestion by the comic-book clientele.

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

The Biographer of a living notable, points out Harold Nicolson, must be able to expose said notable's faults without provoking a libel suit, or possibly even a bullet in a tender spot. Neatest trick, he thinks, is to reveal the defect by hotly denying its opposite.

"For instance," he says, "when Sir Sidney Lee tackled the biography of his patron and friend, King Edward VII, he had to convey the fact that his majesty was a voracious eater, with a tendency to pounce and gobble at the dishes placed before him. Sir Sidney couldn't just say that a king wolfed his victuals. What he wrote was, 'Edward had a splendid appetite at all hours of the day, and never toyed with his food.'"

1956 Tax Cut Possible Only On Deficit Basis

Washington, July 11 — There is a whole lot of red ink sloshing around 'twixt cup and lip on that much-discussed tax cut next year.

Taxes can be cut in 1956 only on a deficit basis. That means still more billions in red ink. For every dollar saved in taxes, significantly, the exchange of views was bi-partisan, with Republicans voicing greatest concern.

The matter was raised by Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.), who has represented his district for more than 24 years and knows politics inside out. Significantly, the exchange of views was bi-partisan, with Republicans voicing greatest concern.

"I would like to ask," inquired Short, "how to change a postmaster or a rural carrier."

"I'm in the process of making a change in my hometown postmaster right now," volunteered Representative John Vorys (R., O.). "It can be done."

This led Representative Wayne Hays (D., D.) to inquire whether his Republican colleagues feared the new Foreign Aid Director wouldn't treat them well on patronage.

"The gentleman doesn't think Mr. Hollister will fire Republicans," asked Hays.

"I don't know," admitted Vorys. "I understand that he plans to demand competence from all employees, and not to play politics."

"In other words," said Representative Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.), "you want to make sure that 200 deserving Republicans get the jobs."

Vorys vigorously disclaimed this. He insisted he was not seeking favors for any political party. But Short pointed out something is amiss.

"I have been informed," he declared sadly, "that a good Republican from my district is scheduled to be fired. As far as I can see, there is no reason why that should happen. He is a good man."

Drivers' Training Benefits

—by H. G. Heller

Driver training, which is being taught in 8,734 high schools throughout the country, is an outstanding factor in programs for reduction of highway accidents, according to Dr. Herbert J. Stack, Director, Center for Safety Education, New York University.

Dr. Stack added there are indications that at least 1,000,000 teenagers will be graduated annually into the good motorist category within the next five years.

East Stroudsburg State Teachers College is among Pennsylvania Colleges and Universities offering Safety Education Courses this summer. Howard DeNike is the instructor.

Among the benefits cited by Dr. Stack was "the voluntary action of most insurance companies in allowing a 15% reduction in premiums for youngsters who have satisfactorily completed their driver-training courses."

Ivan H. Stehman, Chief, Division of Highway Safety Education, Department of Public Instruction, joins Dr. Stack in the importance of driver training in high schools.

Pennsylvania early foresaw the need of adding driver-education to the curriculum of our high schools, and over a 50-year period driver-education has proved its effectiveness in promoting traffic safety. Mr. Stehman said, "Eight out of every ten boys and girls of high school age will be driving a car within a few years. No better agency exists for the development of the necessary skills and responsibility of attitude for safe driving than our educational system."

Furthermore, he pointed out, it costs less to train a student to drive safely than to repair a broken fender. This is a small cost, when compared with the number of lives saved and accidents prevented which can be traced directly to driver-education.

During the past in many states, insurance and automotive industries have made substantial contributions for these purposes. Recently aid has come from the oil industry, through the Esso Safety Foundation. During the summer months the Esso Safety Foundation will provide 145 scholarships and grants-in-aid for the preparation of high school and college teachers as driver education instructors at six colleges in the eastern and southern states.

Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa., has been selected as the educational center for this program for Pennsylvania.

The Allstate Foundation has established a scholarship fund at the following schools: University of Pittsburgh; The Pennsylvania State University; Temple University and West Chester State Teachers College.

Mr. Stehman added, "It is hoped that many of our teachers will take advantage of these scholarships thereby making possible an increased number of high school teachers properly qualified to teach driver education courses which are being added to the curriculum of the high schools."

Women Shortage Make Portugal Partners Scarce

Washington—Blonde and beautiful Polly Guggenheim, wife of the former U. S. ambassador to Portugal, Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, says the problem for hostesses in Madrid is the shortage of unmarried women—quite different from the capital where there are never enough unattached men.

The diplomat's wife said that the women in Portugal are among the world's most attractive, but there aren't enough of them to go around. It was often impossible to find enough dinner partners when she entertained for visiting bigwigs at the embassy, she reports.

The popular Guggenheims are among the town's top party-givers. Their famous Rock Creek Park estate, "Firenze," was the setting for one of the biggest of the June debut dances. The deb was the Colonel's granddaughter, Grace Anne Guggenheim.

Pat-Kelley Unit Meeting At Park

Waneta Dietz Is Bride Of V. Shaplin

Verne Roland Shaplin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shaplin, of 177 B. St., Pen Argyl, took as his bride Miss Waneta Ann Dietz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dietz, of Blaine St., East Bangor, Saturday, June 18.

Dr. C. W. Kitto performed the ceremony in the East Bangor Methodist Church at 2 p.m. in the presence of many relatives and friends. The church was decorated with white gladioli. Mrs. Jane Reimer, organist, played appropriate wedding selections. Soloist was Cornell Walkover.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a strapless ballerina gown of Chantilly lace, tulle, nylon over taffeta with a jacket effect, short gauntlets, fitted bodice with a bouffant skirt of ruffled nylon tulle. With it she wore a nylon tulle lace cloche trimmed with jewels draped from a silk illusion veil. She carried a prayer book trimmed in lace with a white orchid.

Shirwood Shaplin, of 225 Market St., Bangor, was his brother's best man. The ushers were Willard Dietz, of East Bangor, and Floyd Wagner Jr., of Bangor RD 2.

A reception followed at the church hall. They took a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., and are residing with the bridegroom's parents.

KNIT teams up smartly with flannel in a spectator sports type of dress that should live a busy life in the wardrobe of a career girl or college girl. The bodice is of coffee color wool knit and the double breasted front plastron is topped by a rolled collar. Buttons continue down below the belt. The skirt is of brown flannel and is narrow with stitched gores for very slight fullness.

Once home again, everybody seemed to shed down to a minimum of clothing and movement. The thunder growing around the horizon made it seem even better, in a way. That is until the rain came to cool the air and freshen the grass and set the goat to bleating like crazy.

Made a good excuse to go out in the cool and refreshing rain to untie her with the drops pelting hard as bullets and the thirsty ground making a sucking sound. Well, maybe it didn't, but it could have.

Picnic Cancelled

The picnic of Camp 289, PO of A, scheduled to be held tonight at the home of Mrs. Eunice Fennor, has been cancelled. A future date will be announced.

Cutest conversation to take place in our store last week went something like this:

Customer: I'd like one of those cotton plisse slips you sell at 3.98. I have one and it's wonderful, so I thought I'd get another just like it.

Saleswoman: Was it Schrank, do you know?

Customer: Well, I'm not sure... but mine didn't.

Even housewives who rarely leave their snug little homes, and who pride themselves on culinary skill are looking around these days for short-cuts to family feeding. That's where we housewife-career folk can help them. Not only do we know the ins-and-outs of the Super Market deep freeze; we also know the quick and easy desserts that require only a dash of liquid and a good fast beating.

Our candy department offers a double suggestion for lazy, tasty living right now. Simply buy an 8-oz box of 48 Hanstra tea bags and receive free a 1-oz package of Droste's chocolate pudding. Then, while the water is boiling for either a brisk cup of hot tea or a long, tall glass of iced tea, add a bit of milk to the rich chocolate, use an egg beater for a few minutes, and have both dessert and beverage ready in a twinkling. Even as I write this on Saturday morning, I have my plans for an easy but tasty Sunday treat!

While we're on the subject of tea, it's only fair to mention that our "Constant Comment" is arousing so much of it so constantly, we can hardly keep it on our shelves. Customers are asking for it by name in ever-increasing quantity, so Elsie Miller has placed an order for larger containers. At the present time we are selling the 49 and 75c sizes. Try "Constant Comment." You'll enjoy it, I'm sure. It's a spicy tea that's perfect for iced... and so refreshing.

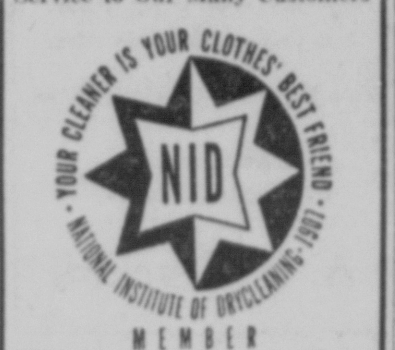

Just can't resist mentioning the customer who had a perfect field day shopping Wyckoff's last week. From away, she bought eight or nine dresses, some eighty dollars worth of lingerie, and thirty dollars worth of bras. If such wholesale shopping seems a bit unusual, the answer is a comparatively easy one: "I always save my money to shop at Wyckoff's while I'm vacationing here," she explained. "I just love this store."

May I add, in behalf of the management and sales personnel, that the affection is mutual!

Talk about stretching the truth! You just can't do it when you talk about the new Skippie girdle and panty girdle, because that amazing new nylon miracle yarn stretches endlessly. So endlessly, as a matter of fact, that the very same size fits EVERY figure from petite to large, and short to tall. Of course you don't believe me! I don't expect you too. I didn't even believe myself at first. About the most I can hope is that you'll come in and "stretch" for yourself. The price is 3.50, which certainly minimizes the maximum!

Mountain Cleaners Memo

A Bulletin presented as a Public Service to Our Many Customers

time to . . .

put away those woolen blankets and bedding and bring out the lightweight quilts and summer blankets. At this time of year, it is always advisable to have the winter blankets cleaned and mothproofed. Perhaps you were farsighted and purchased blankets that were treated with one of the durable types of mothproofing treatments by the textile mills. Even so, you will want to have these cleaned too!

The National Institute of Drycleaning has tested many of the mothproofing products sold to the drycleaning industry. It has made available to us members, a list of these approved products that pass the Institute's specifications. Perhaps you wonder how such evaluations are made. Samples of standard wool fabric are treated with the various products available to us. These treated swatches are exposed to larvae of the black carpet beetle for 28 days, under standard test conditions set up by the American Society of Testing Materials and the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists. For your protection, all products that contain arsenic are eliminated automatically.

For a double-check, duplicate swatches are sent to an independent entomologist who exposes them to the larvae of the beebiting clothes moth. This is just one of the many services performed by the National Institute for its members in order that you, the public, may receive better protection for your clothing and woolen bedding. The cleaning and treatment of your woolen blankets with a mothproofing compound by your cleaner gives you assured protection during these hot summer months.

Paint Service Center Hints For Summer

HERE ARE some good Do-It-Yourself summer hints from the Paint Service Center, 517 Main St., Stroudsburg, your local Sherwin-Williams dealer.

Odorless Paint

If you decide that your outdoor furniture needs a pick-up, paint it right in your own basement with odorless paint.

Before applying the paint be sure that all furniture surfaces are clean. Scrub it thoroughly with plenty of water and a good detergent.

Use a paint scraper or a wire brush to remove peeling or flaking paint wherever necessary. Another good thing to know about is the new wall and floor tile and new drapery hardware departments at the Paint Service Center.

You'll find a large selection of both rubber and plastic floor tile and plastic wall tile.

In the drapery department you can get anything from pleating tape to a big 150-inch traverse rod.

Venetian Blinds

The Paint Service Center also handles custom made venetian blinds. Whatever your size need, or your favorite color combination, you'll find them at the Paint Service Center.

And on display now are the new Kirsch Vertical Blinds. These new blinds really revolutionize window treatment. See them this week at the Paint Service Center... the progressive store for color, style and service.

Briarcliff To House College

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N. Y. July 10 (AP)—Briarcliff Lodge, where sportsmen, stockbrokers and politicians once vined and revealed, is reopening under new auspices.

The building will house King's College, a Protestant, coeducational institution run by the Young People's Assn. for the Propagation of the Gospel.

The 300 students will be pledged not to smoke, drink liquor, dance or go to the theater.

Armstrong's Linoleum

If you're redecorating an old house — or decorating a new one — you'll find it easier when you start with Armstrong's Linoleum Floors. Come in now and they are beautiful, durable and they are not expensive.

Many Make Permanent Residences

BE IT EVER so mobile, there's no place like home.

It used to be the sound of a train whistle that started a case of itchy feet. Now it's the sight of a house trailer.

But strangely, the more people that buy them, the more rooted they become, according to Van D. Yetter, Mobile Trailer Homes dealer at Marshall's Creek.

Big Demand

With the tremendous demand for more homes for Americans in a hurry, the approximately 60 manufacturers have turned out thousands of homes on wheels to help the housing shortage.

During the war they were invaluable in providing homes for military families, college students and plant workers.

The spurt continues. Two million people now live in mobile homes. The military still uses many. Transient workers could not be recruited if it weren't for them. There were 10,000 coaches in one park at an atomic construction job in Savannah River, Ga. Sixteen thousand persons reside in 5,000 trailers in Pike County, Ohio, where they work on another atomic energy plant.

Newlywed Homes

Young married couples find them ideal for clean, attractive homes to start out in. Biggest boom, however, comes from retired couples who sell their homes, pick up a mobile home for from $2800 to $7000 and head for the warm climes of Florida, California or Arizona.

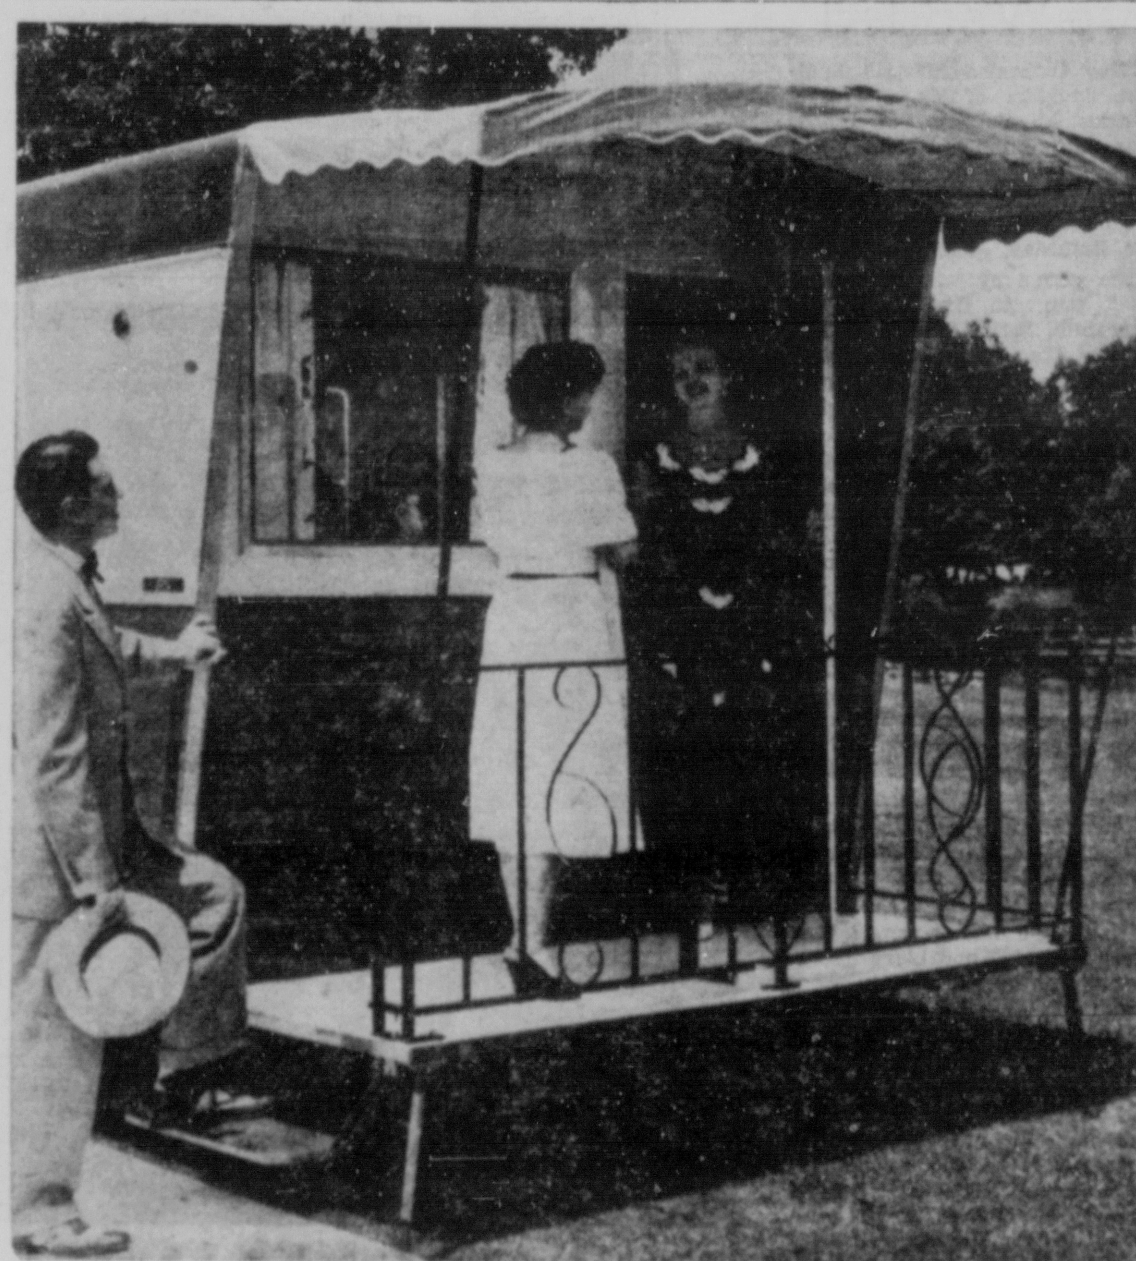

With electric lights, gas heat, refrigerators, fancy kitchens, showers and tubs, the mobile homes find themselves anchored to locations where these utilities can be hooked up. Their owners move only about as frequently as apartment dwellers.

Permanent

In one survey, six of 20 mobile homes had not been moved in a year. Fourteen had been moved once. The Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association estimates that 95 per cent of the sales are for permanent housing, only two per cent for vacation use.

Trailer living is a way of life. The largest are 45 to 50 feet long. Most are eight feet wide, though there is some experimentation with ten foot widths.

The front end of a typical mobile home is the living room. Pic-

"COME ON TO MY front porch," said the lady to her arriving guests. And, how right she was... as you can see this is the front porch of her new Prairie Schooner Mobile Home. Now you can greet your family and friends at the front door; They don't have to climb in from the side as with ordinary trailers. Porch folds up, locks in place for traveling. Prairie Schooner's exclusively, this "new approach" makes the living room more attractive, too. See the fine selection of Mobile Homes, attractive prices and easy terms available at VAN D. YETTER'S, located along route 402 near Marshall's Creek, Pa.

Sid Reckner's Bridge Stop Serves Delicious Foods

HAVE YOU GONE to Sid Reckner's Bridge-Stop Restaurant lately? You should have, because you're not only missing out on the most delicious "old fashioned" buckwheat cakes you ever tasted but everything else that goes along with a good restaurant like Sid's.

His daily menu changes keep a variety standard that is not often achieved by some restaurants of twice the size.

You'll find home-made pies, too, with that individually baked taste that just can't be duplicated in the mass produced baked goods—and the coffee. Man 'oh man, what aroma! You just can't resist that second cup to sip and enjoy after being completely satisfied with a meal that has all the possibilities of having been prepared in your own kitchen, but much better.

'Time Out For Ginger' At Playhouse

MOUNTAINHOME — "Time Out For Ginger", a comedy about teen-agers by Rodney Alexander, opens a one-week run tonight at Pocono Playhouse.

According to Rowena Stevens, producer-manager, the play is this season's production designed to entertain the whole family—adults and children alike.

Modern Family

The story deals with a modern family—a father, mother and three young daughters. Its comic situations revolve around a speech the father makes at the high school deploring regimentation among the young. When his youngest daughter, Ginger, goes out for football the father finds his job at the local bank is in jeopardy and discovers the king-sized lump in his mouth is his own foot.

Co-starring in the play are Albert Dekker and Edith Atwater. Dekker has starred in national productions of "Death of a Salesman", "Command Decision" and "Grand Hotel". Miss Atwater was featured in the national tour of "Ginger" and has appeared in numerous successful Broadway plays.

Church Starred

Sandra Church, who was starred in last week's production of the William Inge play, "Picnic", will be featured as the tomboy, "Ginger" in this week's production.

Directed by John O'Shaughnessy, the play will continue through Saturday night, July 16 with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Intent in Kremlin's Charges

SOVIET accusations against the West, and particularly against the United States, often in the past have mirrored their own intentions. That seems to be the case now, as the Big Four leaders prepare to meet at Geneva next week.

The Russians find themselves in an odd position. They are going to Geneva with the obvious intention of not yielding an inch of really significant ground. They want to come out of Geneva, however, giving the impression that not only have they yielded, but that they have enhanced the prospects for world peace.

To accomplish this difficult task, they are entering the conference with a set of broadly based proposals which sound attractive but diminish under close scrutiny. At best their proposals on disarmament, control of nuclear weapons, reunification and the other problems are basis for further discussion and negotiation which can take up the time of the foreign ministers and other international bodies for a long time to come.

In that time, the Soviet Union apparently hopes it will manage not only to preserve the status quo in Europe, but to set in motion forces which might eat away at Western Unity.

Having approached as far as they dare the Western positions on the most pressing of international problems, the Soviet Union now is likely once again to become stubborn and unyielding on the all-important details.

This seems to be one of the reasons the Soviet press at every opportunity singles out Secretary of State Dulles for attack on the ground that he is trying in advance to wreck the aims of the Geneva conference. The Russians are accusing the American leaders of preparing to be stubborn and unyielding, of needing world tension and of clinging to a desire to spur an armaments race.

Would Break NATO

Clearly, the Soviet Union wants first and foremost to break up the NATO Alliance, and hopes to start this by squeezing the Germans out of it. The bait for this is the promise of German reunification and profitable German trade with the East.

Thus, the Soviet press exhibited wrath at the suggestion that Moscow had lost interest in the reunification of Germany, and responded that this proved Secretary Dulles was attempting in advance to blame the U.S.S.R. for any failure in that respect.

But the fact of the matter is that by the Soviet Union's own words it is not interested in reunifying Germany on any terms acceptable to the West. It states that it wants Germany transformed into a "peace-loving democratic state." The Soviet definition of "democratic" is Communist. It indicates that the Russians will not accept any proposal that a reunited Germany be free to make its own alliances.

Moscow may, however, consent to negotiate on the terms for a German peace treaty and all-German elections. "Negotiate" is the key word. Negotiation can go on indefinitely, while lures and promises still can be held out to the Germans and the rest of Europe.

Until Moscow succeeds in bringing about some sort of neutralization of Central Europe, it can hardly feel secure in turning inward to its own pressing, domestic problems. Until it can turn more attention to those problems, it must make adequate excuses to the Soviet people. The big excuse already seems to be in preparation: The United States was intent all along at blocking international agreement.

The number of telephones in the United States rose from 21 million in 1940 to 53 million today.

Rosemary Torri

Miss Torri Starred At Playhouse

BUSHKILL — "Three Men On A Horse" is the attraction this week at Bushkill Playhouse here.

Among those starred are Michael Murtagh (seen last week as Teddy Brewster in "Arsenic and Old Lace") and Rosemary Torri, seen so far this season as Stella Kowalski in the opening production, "Streetcar Named Desire" and last week as one of the poisonous Brewster sisters.

"Three Men On A Horse", written by John Cecil Holm, is the story of a timid Erwin Trowbridge, a man who makes a hobby out of "doping out" the races.

Erwin's unique talent makes him a heroic figure to a group of three horseplayers who kidnap him, then use his ability to figure the races — an ability Erwin has never put to practical use.

George Robert Allen is directing the play which will be seen through Saturday night. The play's opening performance will be given tonight.

RILEY

Sports Editor

Monroe County will now shift its support to the Slate Belt Babe Ruth League, in that team's quest for the Pennsylvania Babe Ruth League crown. Slate Belt demonstrated its power by hanging an 11-1 defeat on the Stroudsburg-Barrett contingent last Friday, at Gordon Giffels Field. Everything we had heard about the Slate Belt club, in advance of its appearance in Stroudsburg, was certainly true.

The club possesses plenty of power, is good defensively and appears to have good pitching—at least the pitching we saw was plenty good. The club is balanced and could prove troublesome, although Dunmore, the next opponent, is also plenty tough. The Schantz club of Dunmore faced Clark Summit-Abington by a 16-3 count at the same time that the Slate Belt contingent was running over Stroudsburg-Barrett. They play on Wednesday of this week.

Slate Belt is managed by Jim Dietz, a man with a solid baseball background and a knowledge of the game second to none in the Slate Belt area. Jim was a fine pitcher in his own playing days, which came to an end only a couple of years ago. He has an outstanding way with youngsters and is the type of guy that all kids respect. Jim's word will undoubtedly be final, as his judgement is backed by years of playing and managing experience, which includes at least two seasons of piloting in American Legion ball.

Bob Stansberry pitched brilliantly to win Friday's encounter before a large gathering at Giffels Field. It's tough to believe that it was the first victory of the current campaign registered by the right handed tosser. Bob has been charged with two defeats during regular season play, both at the hands of the powerful, league leading Bangor Yanks. But, he was the master on Friday, allowing only six hits. He fanned five and didn't give up a single walk during his tour of duty, before the heat forced the youngster to the sidelines.

The fact that Stansberry didn't give up a single free ticket to the initial sack was his big weapon. Consistently members of the home team appeared to be waiting for a pass, only to have the visiting moundsmen come from behind to register the end. Several times Stansberry came back from the short end of a 3-1 count to retire the hitter. He was also particularly strong when he had runners on base. For a few minutes in the second inning it appeared as if the Stroudsburg-Barrett contingent was going to break the game wide open, but Stansberry put on the brakes and the home team was never able to present another serious threat.

Stroudsburg-Barrett turned in the two fielding gems of the contest. One was a gloved hand grab of a hot line drive by Vic Ajygin at second base, just when it appeared as if the ball was headed into right field for at least a single. Charley Harrison, Barrett, also turned in a nice catch in center field for the home team. Evan Reese made a diving grab of a fly ball in left field after first misjudging the fly.

Carl Smith was probably the outstanding Stroudsburg-Barrett player on the field. The home standing third baseman lashed a double and triple in three trips to the plate and played adequately in the field, although charged with one error. Some fine base running by George Wilgus, Slate Belt shortstop, helped to save the day for his club. George Menhennitt, Slate Belt second baseman, was the only member of the visiting team not hitting over .380. Menhennitt was leadoff man for the Dietzmen.

Frank "Buddy" Radler's trouble, while walking the only three hitters to face him in the first inning, appeared to be that he couldn't get the ball down. His pitches weren't wide of the plate, but just too high to be called strikes. Radler had this same trouble on one or two occasions while pitching for Stroudsburg High last spring, but as a rule his control is plenty good—especially for a left hander.

The Stroudsburg-Barrett team gave the large gathering a bit of base running in the old Brooklyn Dodgers in the second inning, when two runners were perched on second base at the same time. Although a short argument arose, the two runners got straightened out without either being retired. The umpiring was particularly good and those players who complained on occasion on balls and strikes appeared to be way off base. Four good umpires, each with experience, worked as nice a game as anyone could desire under the circumstances.

Whitehead's Single In 13th Downs Johnsonville, 2-1

Metzger Hurls Strouds To 11th Victory

JOHN WHITEHEAD'S single over third base scored Danny Eppley from second base yesterday and gave the Strouds a 2-1 Bi-State League victory over Johnsonville in a torrid 13-inning thriller at Gordon Giffels Field.

Bill "Bump" Metzger, making his initial start of the current campaign with the Strouds southpawed a masterful six-hitter, but had to battle on even terms with John Polisky and Dick Craver all the way into the 13th frame.

Johnsonville reached Metzger for its long run in the top of the fifth. Pete Polisky walked and raced to third on a single by Bill Pensyl. John Polisky lofted a fly to Bill Summers in center field and Pete Polisky streaked to the plate after the catch.

The Strouds picked up their initial marker in the very first inning when Summers walked and went to second on a sacrifice by Paul "Doc" Lim. Ralph Kneebone failed to come up with Dave Nevil's roller and Summers raced to the plate.

Torrid Battle
Metzger and John Polisky toiled in the 11th, with first one club threatening and then the other. But, on each occasion the pitching was too much for the hitting.

Craver took over the pitching duties for Polisky in the 11th, with two on and one out and forced Ted Yuhus to rap into a double play.

But, there was no escape in the bottom of the 13th when Randy Morris grounded out to open the frame, but Eppley drove a single to right. He went to second as Dick Gray was being retired, Bill Pensyl to Craver.

Whitehead sent a wicked grounder toward third and the ball hopped high over Kneebone's head and Eppley scored to clinch the 11th win in 12 Bi-State League outings for Manager Frank Radler and company.

A game scheduled between Blairtown and Roseto, at Roseto, was rained off the books yesterday and will be played at a later date.

Box score follows:

Pocono Little League Ready

CANADENSIS—The Pocono Little League will resume its regular schedule today, following a brief hiatus, it was announced last night by Frank Thomas, circuit president.

The schedule will pit Barrett Rotary against Barrett Lions, at Mountainhome's Signin Field, while Tannersville invades Mount Pocono and Tobyhanna and Pocono Lions tangle at Pocono Pines. All action is carded for 6:15 p.m.

Date Set For Contest

BANGOR—The District Two Babe Ruth League playoff game between Slate Belt and Dunmore will be played here on Wednesday, at 8:15 p.m. The game will be played under the lights.

Frank "Buddy" Radler's trouble, while walking the only three hitters to face him in the first inning, appeared to be that he couldn't get the ball down. His pitches weren't wide of the plate, but just too high to be called strikes. Radler had this same trouble on one or two occasions while pitching for Stroudsburg High last spring, but as a rule his control is plenty good—especially for a left hander.

WILD THROW—Pete Polisky, right fielder for Johnsonville, is shown above jumping back to first base as Bill "Bump" Metzger attempts to pick the runner off first with a quick throw to Danny Eppley. The throw was high and Polisky went to second on the play.

Reeders Uses Fast Start To Turn Tide Against West End

REEDERS—Reeders banged out an 8-2 Pocono Mountains League baseball victory over West End A. C. yesterday here on the winning contingent's home field.

Three runs in the first frame sent Reeders enroute to its favorable decision behind the seven-hit pitching of Larry Butz.

The host club went on to pick up two more counters in the third inning, two in the fifth and a singleton in the seventh.

Only Markers
West End averted a shutout with a pair of markers in the seventh round.

Jack Young and Bob Burkett divided the West End pitching, giving up a total of 13 markers.

George Hartshorn led the winning parade with a perfect three-for-three showing at the plate.

Saylorsburg Rolls Over Lake Harmony

LAKE HARMONY—Saylorsburg put another length between itself and the Pocono Mountains League baseball field yesterday with a one-sided 14-4 verdict over Lake Harmony, here on the latter's home terrain.

Saylorsburg gained revenge for an early season setback at the hands of Lake Harmony with plenty to spare.

The visiting contingent picked up two tallies in the first, five in the second, two in the fifth, five in the sixth and two more in the eighth.

Homers
Lake Harmony scored all four of its runs off Bob Bonser in the eighth. One of the losing blows was a home run by Art Sterner. Dick Schaller blasted a homer for Saylorsburg.

Bonser limited Lake Harmony to eight safeties, while the Lakers clubbed out 15.

Tobyhanna Uses Two Big Innings To Capture Favorable Association Verdict Over Moscow

MOSCOW—Second play Tobyhanna upended league leading Moscow in a Pocono Mountains Association baseball game yesterday by an 8-5 count. The game was played here on the losing club's home grounds.

Jack Dunning, pitching tight ball in the clutch, had only one bad inning at Tobyhanna rolled to its most impressive decision of the current campaign.

Big Blast
Tobyhanna blasted the lid off the game with six runs in the second round and then made certain of victory with two more tallies in the fourth.

Moscow threatened to pull the game out of the fire in the seventh inning when the host team scored five times. But, Dunning put on the brakes and Tobyhanna went on to win by a margin of three runs.

The host club held a 12-10 edge in hits, but Tobyhanna bunched its blows to gain the verdict.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your future. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the key number in the corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
